PRESS RELEASE

ISM Scholarship Student awarded prestigious global leadership award

A current scholarship student from International School Moshi has been offered a prestigious award by The University of British Columbia (UBC), in Vancouver, Canada.

Daniel Mundeve (class of 2008) has been awarded the University's International Leader of Tomorrow award in recognition of his exceptional academic achievement and outstanding leadership qualities. This award has a value of $34,100 (Canadian dollars) annually for up to four years and will cover all tuition and living costs so that Daniel can study for an undergraduate degree in Geography and International Relations within the University.

Daniel, who is from the Kahama region, also received a four-year scholarship to study at International School Moshi in 2004, through the generous financial support of Barrick Gold Corporation Tanzania (Bulyanhulu Gold Mine). When he heard about the success of his UBC scholarship application, he was overwhelmed:

“UBC is one of the top universities in the world for studying social sciences, so I am very excited to be pursuing my education there. I am pleased to be going to Canada too as it is a very environmentally aware country. This will strengthen my desire to learn more about environmental issues, as it has an amazing natural geography.

I am the first person in the Mundeve family to go to university. If it wasn't for the ISM Scholarship Programme and the support of Barrick Gold Corporation Tanzania, I would not have this opportunity to study at UBC.”

International School Moshi continues to search for other companies and individuals interested in investing in future Tanzanian leadership. Although still in the early stages, five of the nine scholarship students who have graduated from International School Moshi are now studying at some of the world's top universities. All have received full scholarships to do so.
